I am delighted that you are interested in our study programme. Transnational History offers a carefully designed and intellectually stimulating framework for examining historical processes across and beyond national boundaries. Studying in Prague — at the crossroads of Europe — students become part of an internationally diverse community and develop analytical and practical skills that open doors to careers in academia, diplomacy, culture, and global organisations.

Prof. Ota Konrád, Programme Director

Transnational History

Transnational History (TNH) is a two-year master's degree programme focusing on transnational processes and phenomena from the 19th century to the present day. It explores key themes such as globalisation, migration, war and its consequences, social and political transformations, and cultural exchange — processes that transcend national, state, and cultural boundaries. The programme is distinctive in its integration of historical research with the analysis of contemporary global challenges.

The TNH programme combines subject knowledge with advanced historical research methods. It emphasises the development of critical thinking, textual and source analysis, intercultural competence, and analytical skills. Students have the opportunity to compile their own curriculum that reflects their personal interests and future career plans.

Programme Offers

- Innovative and engaging courses
- Curriculum tailored to individual interests
- Supportive study environment
- Community of talented students from all over the world
- Small seminar groups and personalised academic guidance
- Study abroad and internship opportunities
- Extracurricular activities

Career Opportunities

- International organisations
- Diplomacy
- Public administration
- NGOs and think tanks
- Cultural institutions
- Academia and research
- Multinational companies
- Journalism and media

For more information about the TNH study programme, its courses and study requirements, the application process, tuition fees, scholarships, and more, please visit our website.

Transnational History

Study in Prague at Charles University

Discover how history shapes our interconnected world

Explore issues that transcend national boundaries

Adapt your curriculum to your specific interests

Develop your critical thinking skills

Contacts

study.ims@fsv.cuni.cz

ims.fsv.cuni.cz/en

IMS FSV UK
U Kříže 8
158 00 Prague 5
Czech Republic

Institute of International Studies

Faculty of Social Sciences
Charles University
Prague

Graduate Degree Programme

Transnational History

FACULTY
OF SOCIAL SCIENCES
Charles University